

Topic of the month:

Managing your References and Literature

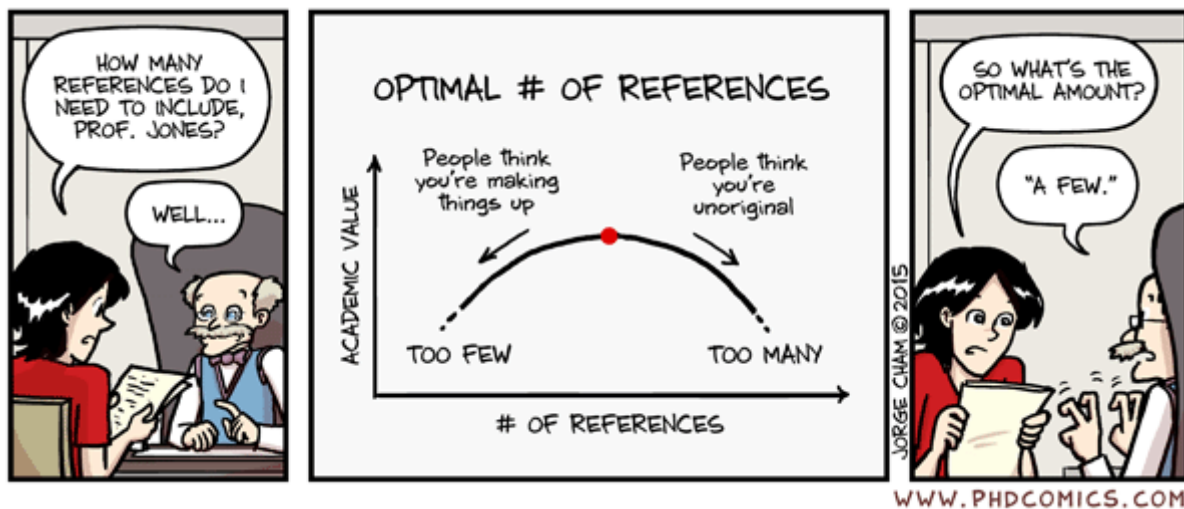

25 September 2020

13.00 – 14.30

Online via Zoom

Citing and referencing other people's research is an important part of the scientific process. In order to keep an overview over the papers you have read (or still plan to read), it is helpful to write things down. Reference management software can be a useful tool to make your work process more efficient and rewarding.

In this seminar, two of the most common reference management programmes will be introduced. We will also share and discuss useful strategies to manage references and literature. Bring and share your own, if you like!

Topics include:

- Zotero – will be introduced by Pauline Cornuault
- Mendeley – will be introduced by Susana Simancas
- How to keep track of what you have already read and still want to read
