

Early Career Researcher Support Programme

Transferable Skills Course

Scientific writing: from “How to start” to “how to publish”

Dr. Carsten Rohr

<https://www.carstenrohr.de/?lang=en>

13 and 19 April 2022

online

Objectives

Publishing your results is the currency in modern science. It might not be the dearest occupation to you, but it is a decisive one and might well play an important role in what your future research opportunities are. In this course we will write a test paper with your real data, going through the whole writing process.

Topics: A – Z of scientific writing

- Strong message
- Story arc
- Figures that tell the story
- Scientific writing style
- Step by step writing process
- Daily writing routine
- Collaborating on papers
- Submission and referee process

Methods

different exercises for you to apply the learned material to your own writing

Target group

PhD students who have enough (analyzed) data to write a paper

Please bring...

... your scientific texts to the course (any published or upcoming papers; maybe your M.Sc. thesis).

Format and Schedule

Live online via Zoom (the link will be provided before the course)

09.00 – 17.00 including breaks

Please note that in our online courses, we expect people to turn on their cameras. This is a matter of respect towards the lecturer and the other participants and makes any kind of interaction much easier.

Early Career Researcher Support Programme

The trainer

Carsten Rohr has a doctorate in physics. He already started working as an educator and trainer during his studies and has been working as a freelance trainer ever since he finished his PhD. He has several teaching certificates and has been awarded a prize for innovative teaching. His main teaching focus is on self-organization for scientists.

Registration

To register for this course, please visit the course web page:
<https://www.marum.de/en/education-career/2022-04-13.html>

Please note that your registration will be binding.

The registration deadline for this course is 4 April 2022.

Any enquiries regarding the course should be addressed to early-career@marum.de.